

A close-up, profile view of a woman's face and hand. She is wearing a dark, long-sleeved garment. Her hand is raised near her chin, and a luxury watch with a diamond-set dial and a metal bracelet is visible on her wrist. The background is a blurred, modern interior.

Cubic Zirconia (CZ) is a high-quality, lab-created gemstone designed to closely mimic the appearance of a diamond. Known for its brilliant sparkle and clarity, CZ is often colorless but can be produced in a wide range of colors to suit different styles and preferences. With a hardness rating of 8.5 on the Mohs scale.

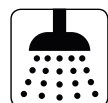

The dial features genuine mother of pearl, offering a natural iridescent shimmer with subtle variations in color and texture. This unique material adds elegance and sophistication, making each watch truly one-of-a-kind."

Stainless steels 316L are notable for their corrosion resistance, which increases with increasing chromium content. Stainless steel's resistance to corrosion and staining, low maintenance, and familiar lustre make it an ideal material for many applications where both the strength of steel and corrosion resistance are required.
