ACBC ECO MATERIALS

RePET is derived from post consumer recycled PET bottles. Using recycled polyester means saving a great amount of CO2 compared to using virgin material and reduces the amount of plastics that may end up in landfills and oceans.

FreeBio™ is a biobased material developed as an alternative to conventional plastics. It is composed of renewable biological resources, such as plant-based polymers, to create an eco-friendly option that reduces reliance on fossil fuels.

ReCo is a sustainable composite material created from a blend of recycled fibers and resins. This eco-friendly material is engineered to provide excellent strength and durability while significantly reducing the use of virgin raw materials.

ACBC ECO MATERIALS

ReFoam is a circular material made from pre-consumer recycled foam cut-offs derived from the production of insoles. The recycled foam bits are glued together using virgin polyurethane (PU), creating a durable and sustainable product.

ReRubber is a recycled rubber material sourced from post-consumer rubber products, such as tires and industrial rubber waste. The material undergoes a specialized processing method to create a high-performance and eco-friendly product, suitable for a variety of applications.

GLOSSARY

GLOSSARY / CAN SAYS

General assessment

- The product uses responsible materials*
- The responsible materials are pre and post consumer recycled materials;
- The pre consumer recycled materials are;
 - Rubber Granules;
 - Polyamide;
 - Production Waste Foam
- The post consumer recycled materials are PET bottles;

The model City Running (in all six versions) has:

- Upper Main in FreeBio™, composed of renewable biological resources;
- Laces in ReCo, made from recycled fibers and resins;
- Lining in rPET, derived from post-consumer recycled PET bottles;
- Insole in ReFoam, made from pre-consumer recycled foam cut-offs;
- Outsole in ReRubber, sourced from post-consumer rubber products

The model Tennis (in all six versions) has:

- Upper Main in FreeBio[™], composed of renewable biological resources;
- Laces in ReCo, made from recycled fibers and resins;
- Lining in rPET, derived from post-consumer recycled PET bottles;
- Insole in ReFoam, made from pre-consumer recycled foam cut-offs;
- Outsole in ReRubber, sourced from post-consumer rubber products

GLOSSARY / CAN'T SAYS

- The shoe uses sustainable materials There are no such materials that are sustainable in an absolute way, the correct saying is "The shoe uses responsible materials" or "The shoe uses materials that are more sustainable than the traditional" or "the shoe uses materials that have certified sustainability characteristics";
- The shoe is biodegradable/compostable The shoe is not biodegradable as it comprises recycled and virgin synthetic materials that do not degrade under biodegradability ISO, ASTM or other internationally recognised certified standards.
- The shoe is recyclable/circular Shoes in general are not recyclable as a whole, they can only be down-cycled and become tiles for anti-shock flooring. Recyclable is possible only if the shoe is mono-material or if its materials can be disassembled. Either way if the producer does not take responsibility on the down-cycling or recycling process, the claim is improper.
- The shoe is sustainable Sustainability is never an absolute, it's always relative to another reference... the correct saying is "The shoe is more sustainable than" Or "The shoe has sustainability characteristics".
- The shoe is 0 impact the shoe is not 0 impact, this can be reached by calculating the CO2 produced by the product with an LCA certification and buying CO2 credits to compensate the CO2 produced during the products life cycle.
